

CAPTURE OF IMPORTANT RAILROAD CITY CLAIMED BY NAZIS

Realigned Russian Troops Take Stand Before Voronezh

BY HENRY C. CASSIDY

Moscow, July 7—(AP)—German mechanized divisions battled realigned Soviet troops today before Voronezh, on the Moscow-Rostov railway at the approximate junction of southern and central Red armies, and a dispatch from the city said "conditions here are extremely hard."

(Adolf Hitler's high command reported the capture of Voronezh, which lies 10 miles east of the upper Don river. The Nazi-controlled Paris radio went further, declaring the Germans were already pushing on from Voronezh "in the direction of Povorino," another important rail junction, 140 miles to the east, implying a major break-through.)

A dispatch to the army newspaper Red Star said the enemy laid pontoon bridges, repaired damaged spans and sent barges and boats swarming at several points to the east bank of "an important water-line" (apparently the Don) under the cover of bombardments by artillery and aerial squadrons.

The upper Don, a major objective on the push from Kursk, lies about 50 miles beyond the point of the Germans' greatest advance across the region in 1941 campaigns.

Soviet tanks were ranged along the east bank of the German-forced water line and were reported throwing back successive waves of Nazis attempting further crossings.

This indicated that the Germans had failed in initial efforts to penetrate the Russian defenses in depth.

On the opposite, or western, shore tanks and troop-laden German trucks were backed up for some distance awaiting a chance to cross, and Red air force bombers were blasting them in unending waves while Soviet fighters were in constant clashes with Nazi fighters.

Cutting through a massive curtain of German anti-aircraft fire, Russian bombers were reported to have destroyed two large crossings and damaged two others, then to have bombed Nazi engineers trying to repair the damage.

At one point where the Germans crossed the water line 40 tanks neared the stream, only to fall into a circle of Soviet anti-tank fire which smashed them. The Red air force was credited with destruction of 59 more enemy tanks and 72 troop and supply-laden trucks.

Russian troops were reported to have fallen back toward Voronezh in good order and removed the menace of Nazi flanking attacks.

Voronezh lies 10 miles east of the Don and on one of the major tributaries, the Voronezh river.

Fresh divisions, including the 88th German infantry, were moved into the battle after being rushed from another sector, increasing to 12 the total number of divisions and to almost 200,000 the number of Nazi troops in the drive, the Russians said.

Thousands of other Germans were killed, the Russians said, and a dispatch from the front declared six trains totaling 247 cars, each crowded with wounded, had been seen moving to the German rear.

Hundreds of Nazi tanks, planes and guns were declared battered out of action.

Fighting by day and by night, the Russians kept "wearing down the Germans and destroying their war equipment," it was announced, and a half dozen engagements cost the invaders 3,550 dead.

Favorable weather conditions after a late spring brought steady rain.

London, July 7.—(AP)—Major Gen. Carl Spaatz, who in 1929 made aviation history as commander of the army's endurance plane, "Question Mark," has been appointed commander-in-chief of the United States army air forces in the European theater of war, it was announced today.

As his first public act in his new post, General Spaatz today awarded Distinguished Flying Crosses to three members of one of the American bomber crews who participated in the first United States air raid on German-held western Europe July 4.

General Spaatz himself wears both the Distinguished Service Cross and the Distinguished Flying Cross, the former for bringing down two German planes during the St. Mihiel offensive in the first World War and the latter for piloting the "Question Mark" to its first record continuous flight of 150 hours, 40 minutes and 15 seconds over Los Angeles in January, 1929.

The red-haired, 51-year-old commander has been in England since June, preparing the ground work for the American bombing against Germany.

Editor of PM Erie Waitress Defends Stand Slain By Man On Induction Who Suicides

New York, July 7.—(AP)—Ralph M. Ingersoll, editor and publisher of the newspaper PM, accused his draft board in an open letter today of attempting to draft him because of prejudice against PM.

A major portion of the newspaper's front page headlines was devoted to the letter and the next three pages contained the text and an explanation by Ingersoll, who said in an editorial preface that he was ready to go into the army or continue as editor but added: "What I am kicking about is the decision being made by a draft board which has betrayed prejudice in my case, apparently because it doesn't like PM."

Classified 1-A by his local board, Ingersoll appeared for induction June 24 only to find that this had been delayed because of an appeal for deferment by Marshall Field, owner of PM, who said Ingersoll was indispensable to the paper's continuance.

The editor was scheduled to appear today at Page Seven.

OFFICIALS IN CLASH OVER GRAIN RUBBER

Senator Gillette Proposes Contracts for Petroleum Product be Canceled Government

TO SAVE VITAL METALS

Washington, July 7.—(P)—Contending that months could be saved, Senator Gillette (D-Iowa) proposed today that the government cancel some of its contracts for plants to produce synthetic rubber from petroleum and build new facilities for production from grain.

Gillette made this suggestion after hearing testimony by Chairman Donald M. Nelson of the War Production Board that the need for copper and other vital materials precluded the construction of new grain alcohol plants at this time.

Gillette told reporters that if this contention existed, there was all the more reason why the government should shift its emphasis away from the petroleum process to what he said was the more simplified procedure of producing synthetic rubber-yield butadiene from grain alcohol.

"These grain alcohol plants can be built with one-tenth of the critical materials and in from one-third to one-fourth of the time it takes to construct a petroleum-process plant," he declared.

Of a total potential annual production of 1,000,000 tons of synthetic rubber, approximately 200,000 tons had been allocated by the WPB to the grain alcohol process.

Nelson told a subcommittee headed by Gillette, yesterday, however, that he did not believe any new grain alcohol facilities should be erected at this time but was rushing plans to convert whiskey distilleries to make the industrial product.

Gillette said Nelson had agreed to make a complete report to the committee next Tuesday after which the group would reconsider legislation to set up an independent agency to direct the construction of grain alcohol plants, a measure which Nelson has opposed.

President Roosevelt was informed meanwhile that the scrap rubber collection campaign which ends Friday had yielded 234,293 tons up to July 3. The report was delivered by William R. Boyd, Jr., chairman of the Petroleum Industry War Council.

Two Victims of Garland Auto Crash in Serious Condition At Warren General Hospital

Bodies of Infant Brothers Taken to New Alexandria For Burial

JURY IS IMPANELED

Seven persons remained in the Warren General Hospital today, two of them in a serious condition, following the automobile accident on Route 77, near Garland, yesterday morning which claimed the lives of two infant boys.

Those whose conditions were described as only fair today are Gusie Marshall, 11, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clair Marshall, formerly of Blooming Valley near Meadville, who were enroute to their new home in Wellshore at the time of the accident, and George Geer, 64, of Barnes, a passenger in the car which collided with the Marshall machine.

The Marshall child has a laceration over the right eyebrow and possible skull fracture. X-ray pictures are being taken today to determine the full extent of her injuries.

Geer has a fracture of the lower jaw and lacerations about the face and legs.

Others who remained in the hospital today are:

Clair Marshall, 39, multiple lacerations about the head and face, fracture of the upper jaw and contusions of the extremities; condition appears good.

Grace Marshall, 8, laceration on the cheek; condition good.

Elva Bennis, 51, of Youngsville, scalp laceration and possible chest injury; condition good.

L. H. Warner, 58, of Barnes, operator of the car which struck the Marshall machine; fracture of right shoulder blade, fracture of left arm, fractured upper jaw and contusions; condition good.

Clayton Buchanan, of Youngsville, who suffered a scalp laceration, was discharged from the hospital last evening.

Others in the accident who did not require hospital treatment included Mary Marshall, 16, Lillian Gray, 36, and Viola Proctor, 30, of Youngsville. The latter two were passengers in the Warner car.

Mrs. Gusie Buck, of State College, mother of Mrs. Marshall, arrived here last evening after being notified of the accident. The Rev. and Mrs. R. C. Fullerton, of New Alexandria, also came to Warren to assist with arrangements for the funeral of Eugene and David Marshall, infant sons of Mr. and Mrs. Marshall, who were killed in the crash. Mary Marshall returned to New Alexandria with them.

BRITISH ARE BOLSTERED BY U. S. TANKS

Enemy is Under Continued Pressure on Ground and From Heavy Attacks in the Air

BENGASI IS BOMBED

Cairo, July 7.—(P)—Under continued pressure on the ground and heavy attack from the air, the Axis invaders of Egypt have drawn back westward on their southern flank in the battle area of El Alamein, a British communique disclosed today.

Several small enemy columns were engaged and dispersed, the British announced, but the principal land activity was cannonading on both sides.

Alot, American and British heavy bombers by daylight set fires and hit shipping at Bengasi, principal Axis supply port deep in Libya, and British air raids just behind the lines spread fire and confusion among the enemy.

The main allied blows appeared to be these widespread air attacks.

(The fact that the Germans and Italians were pulling back their southern flank despite absence of any great land fighting indicated a fear of being outflanked.

A British military commentator in London said the line once straight north and south, now was bent like a fishhook and that Rommel appeared more reluctant to join action as his communications came more into danger.)

While the enemy struck at the Nile Delta area, 65 to 70 miles eastward, with an overnight air and desert assault, British aircraft bombed and strafed areas about El Daba and between Matruh and Tobruk.

The British nevertheless were under no illusion that the threat to Egypt and their Alexandria naval base was eased.

(The German high command said that repeated British tank attacks in the El Alamein battlezone have been repulsed and 27 of the British tanks destroyed.

(The German account was one of purely defensive operations on the land front. The communique made no mention of further attacks by Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's far-extended striking force.)

Although a steady stream of troops, tanks and guns was moving up the line, the British, they conceded that Rommel's position was strong and that he probably was receiving reinforcements also.

A night assault, in which the British took an Axis strong point between El Alamein and a ridge to the south, was General Sir Claude J. E. Auchinleck's most important gain to be reported up to day in the combat effort.

Britain's commander in chief, now in active command at the front, is facing almost all Rommel's North African forces concentrated in an area running about 12 miles inland from the El Alamein region and roughly 12 miles to the west.

Eight days are spent after almost six weeks of ceaseless battle in the tiring dry heat of the desert and it is too early yet to say whether the British have the strength left to try for a knock-out.

Have Children's Teeth Checked Now

BY PAUL BRAUNSCHWEIGER of the Mullen Drug Co.
No sooner does school close than vacation plans, camp plans, traveling plans begin to be made.

Time must be allowed, however, for dental care, especially for the children. Dentists appreciate being given time for thorough attention to caries, small troubles, cared for in childhood, prevent a world of distress and embarrassment in later years.

Make appointments with your dentist as soon as school is over and see to it that the appointments are kept.

Dentifrices for the proper care of teeth should be purchased upon the dentist's advice from a trusted pharmacy.

Margaret Woodruff Weds Kenneth Cole In Home Ceremonial

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Burton H. Woodruff, 107 Pleasant Road, was the scene of a pretty wedding at seven o'clock last evening, when their daughter, Margaret, became the bride of Kenneth Cole, son of Mrs. Ray Cole, of this city.

Rev. Frank Kehrl, of Cleveland, O., uncle of the bride, read the marriage service in the presence of the immediate families. They were attended by Miss Katherine Woodruff, sister of the bride, and Claire Schnell, of Youngsville.

The bride wore a street length dress of navy with white accessories and her bridesmaid wore yellow. Each wore a complementing shoulder corsage.

Immediately following the ceremony, a wedding luncheon was served and the couple left for a short motor trip. Flower arrangements for the home were artistically done by Mrs. Merle Schweitzer, of Hemlock, cousin of the bride.

Mr. and Mrs. Cole will be at home to their friends after July 20, 108 Russell street. Both young people are graduates of the local high school. The bride has been employed for the past five years by the New Process Company and Mr. Cole, who is a Hoff Business College graduate, also is employed in the office of the Struthers Wells-Titusville Corporation here.

Eastern Engagement Of Interest Locally

Warren friends and acquaintances of Miss Georgina Hazeltine will be interested in the following announcement, which appeared in Boston papers July 4:

Professor H. D. Hazeltine, of Cambridge, Mass., and Cambridge, England, has announced the engagement of his daughter, Miss Georgina Hazeltine, to Ensign W. Covington Hardee, U. S. N. R., son of Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Hardee, of Florence, South Carolina.

The bride-elect attended the Chateaufort School in Switzerland, was graduated from the Marlborough School in Los Angeles and in June, 1941, from Bennington College (Vt.) and attended Simmons College School of Social Work.

Ensign Hardee was graduated from Emory University in June, 1940, and attended the Harvard Law School until March of this year, when he received his commission in the United States Naval Reserves.

The wedding will take place on September 5.

Corry Girl Is Bride Of Stanley Olander

St. Elizabeth's church at Corry was the scene of a pretty wedding of considerable local interest when, at nine o'clock Saturday morning, Miss Eleanor S. Rysiek, of that place, became the bride of Stanley Olander, of Irvine.

Included in the large bridal party were the following from Warren: Dorothy Rushok, as bridesmaid; Barbara Rushok, as flower girl; and Frederick Paul Rushok, as ring bearer. Frank Olander was his brother's best man.

Immediately following the ceremony, a reception was held in St. Edward's Hall and about 200 were served for the wedding breakfast. Later in the day there was music and dancing for wedding guests from West Virginia, Detroit, Chicago, Cleveland, Shamokin, Jamestown, Warren, Irvine and Union City.

Mr. and Mrs. Olander have left for a honeymoon trip to Washington, D. C., and Baltimore, Md.

Miss Romaine Meacham, to be the bride of Dr. Francis Ericsson on Saturday, was complimented to-day with a luncheon given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Branch, 8 East Third avenue, by the Misses Betty Jane and Mary Branch and Miss Louise Steber. Out of town guests were Mrs. John H. Fenstermacher, Corry; Miss Jean Marting, Cleveland, O.; and Miss Katherine Osgood, Jamestown, N. Y.

Miss Meacham and Dr. Ericsson were honored guests Monday at an evening party given by Mr. and Mrs. Charles C. Blackman and Mrs. Frances Dean Bates at the Blackman cottage on the Conewango. Miss Marting was the only out of town guest.

Previously, Mrs. M. H. Deardorff gave a tea at her home on Jackson avenue, when the mother of the bride-elect, Mrs. H. B. Meacham, presided at the pretty table.

CCC Camps Turned Over To the Army

Four Civilian Conservation Corps camps in the Third Corps Area, including the former Camp 13, near Sheffield, have been turned over to the army as motor repair and reconditioning centers and for other purposes, according to an Associated Press dispatch from Baltimore today.

Col. David McG. Speed, in charge of liquidating the 36 camps in the area, said those at Williamsport and Sheffield are being used as motor repair centers.

Camps at Beltsville, Md., and Salem, Va., are being used as motor maintenance training centers for army recruits, it was stated.

At the present time, it was learned here, only the former CCC repair shops in Sheffield are being used by the army. These shops, originally set up by the U. S. Forest Service with paid employees and later manned by CCC youths trained for the purpose, have been operated by the army since Camp 13 was abandoned on November 10, 1941.

Whether or not the operations would be expanded to Camp 13 itself could not be learned today.

State Has Chance to Set a New Oil Production Record

BY RALPH E. WALLIS
Harrisburg, July 7—(AP)—Pennsylvania has a "good chance" of setting a new oil production record this year with new drilling replaced by a program of reconditioning existing wells.

"We have a good chance to beat the previous high mark of 19,000,000 barrels set in 1937," Dr. George H. Ashley, state geologist, asserted.

Following a federal government request for more oil, Dr. Ashley said the state decided to force extra oil from the 80,000 wells in the state "instead of wasting time drilling for new wells."

"We are trying to persuade the companies to clean out and recondition the small wells in a variety of ways," he added.

Dr. Ashley pointed out that wells which have become "paralyzed" are being reopened through rammers, or electric hammers, which allow a "freer flow."

"Deeper drilling of old wells," he added, "and application of secondary pressure are also stepping up our oil production."

Pennsylvania, after producing the high 1939 total, showed declines which continued until 1940 when production leveled off.

"We may exceed the old high mark of 75,000 barrels a day and we are trying for 85,000 barrels daily," the geologist said.

State engineers are contacting oil company officials in every oil-producing county and are concentrating their efforts to step up production in the rich Bradford and McKean county fields.

Local Legion Groups Will Hold Picnic

A large turnout is anticipated for the picnic and outing to be held at Oakview Park tomorrow afternoon and evening by the American Legion Post and Legion Auxiliary.

Families of both units, as well as their friends, are cordially invited to participate in the fun, which will include games and contests for the younger folks and prizes for the winners.

All attending are asked to bring picnic baskets and table service. Ice cream will be served by committee of the members and the ladies' committee will provide cream and coffee.

FAMILY REUNIONS

WEILER FAMILY

The Weiler reunion was held Sunday at the Weiler Farm, with relatives in attendance from Warren, Russell, Falconer, Buffalo, Rochester, Spring Creek and Cleveland. The family complimented with novelty showers two recent brides, Betty Kaffenlin Damon and Mildred King DeVore. Officers elected for the coming year were: President, Glen Slye, Rochester; vice president, Warde Weiler, Falconer; secretary-treasurer, Ruth Schwing, Buffalo, N. Y. It was planned to hold the gathering at the same place next year.

HEETER GATHERING

The eighth annual reunion of the Heeter family will be held Sunday, July 12, at Wildcat Park at Ludlow. All attending are asked to bring their own table service.

FARM LABOR PROBLEM

In connection with an announcement made last week that forms for the designation of volunteer farm placement representatives are being distributed to United States Employment offices in Pennsylvania, including the one in Warren, it is interesting to note that word comes from New York state that unless workers are found, a record crop—$59 million worth of fruits and vegetables—will rot on the trees and in the field.

On the same day that brought that warning from a federal agency, there arrived from the same agency under separate cover information that in New York City unemployment among needle trades workers is reaching abnormal proportions.

The farmers need four thousands field hands between now and September. Almost 90,000 garment workers are unemployed.

The United States Employment Service, which reports both troubles, says there is no idea of feeding the farms from New York's needle workers. Conceding that a relatively small proportion might make good field hands, certainly one of twenty could help a little.

Congress should not hesitate to adopt House Resolution 6911, recommended by President Roosevelt and Secretary of State Hull, which would stop commercialization of the name Red Cross or its emblem.

Since 1905 no commercial exploitation of the name or emblem has been permitted except by concerns which, at that time, were using them lawfully. There were not many of these. Three, operating on a national scale, come to mind. But outside this country even such limited trading upon the Red Cross' good deeds is not permitted—even in the axis countries, which have shown little good taste otherwise.

The bill, now in the House Foreign Affairs Committee, would allow a year for firms now commercializing the name or emblem to change over and familiarize customers with a new name and trade mark. This seems ample.

FATEFUL ADVENTURE

What started out to be a new and important adventure for a Blooming Valley family consisting of the parents and five children ended in one of the most pathetic tragedies the county has witnessed in many months when their automobile collided with another near Garland Monday morning, resulting in the deaths of two winsome baby boys and injury to four other people including two loveable little girls. A third very miraculously escaped.

The heartfelt sympathy of the entire community is extended, not only to the grief-stricken survivors, who were enroute to Wellsboro to establish themselves in a new home, but to the occupants of the second car which figured in the fateful crash.

A drive that should be supported by all who are in a position to do so is on in Warren at the present time to find playing cards for boys in the service. A special box has been placed in the lobby of the Library Theatre where used cards may be left. The local committee headed by Mrs. Albert Rockwell will see to it that the cards are delivered to the proper source for distribution to boys in the camps.

Still too many automobiles on the highways without that new use federal tax. Not a few drivers will find themselves in difficulties one of these days, which will cost them considerable more than $5.00.

The weatherman will have an opportunity to get back in the good graces of a lot of folks by using his influence to have a clear sky Friday afternoon and evening.

Keep those letters going to the boys in the service. The longer they are away the more they yearn to hear from home.

Usually the best part of a fisherman's luck is the day he gets off.

WASHINGTON IN WARTIME

By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON—All wars are a field day for the sloganers—but this one is tops.

There are thousands of war production plants in the United States. The War Production Board has a production drive division. The sole purpose of this division is to stimulate maintenance of production schedules. An important phase of its work is promotion of slogan campaigns.

IN 313 major war plants, slogan contests already have been held. In many of them, cash or war bond prizes are offered for winning slogans. In the Cadillac factory in Michigan, 3,323 workers participated in the contest.

The Stromberg-Carlson plant at Rochester, N. Y., waged a battle for slogans under the inspiration of a corps of attractively-uniformed girls. More than 2,000 employees submitted slogans.

Some of the sloganers are patently amateurish. But many produce rhythms and alliterations that help turn the wheels in their own plants. For example, "Harding's Hands Harass Hitler and Hirohito" may not mean a thing outside Elmira, N. Y., but it's a war cry for the employees of Harding Bros. there.

The worker at the Curtiss-Wright factory in Beaver, Pa., who contributed that "Speed 'Em for Freedom" knows all there is to know about putting zip into words that make work. So does the Westinghouse Electric employee at Canton, Ohio, who thought up that "T.N.T.—Today Not Tomorrow."

Add, too, the Waukegan, Ill.,

American Steel and Wire Co. worker who contributed, "Speed the wheels to beat the heels."

And the offer of the Globe-Union man at Milwaukee: "Production quotas must be beat to knock the Axis off its feet."

SOME of the puns that get into the slogans are something. From Du Pont's Joliet, Ill., factory comes: "If it's Nip and Tuck, make it the Nip that gets Tuck." And the Donora (Pa.) Zinc Works pasted up, "Let's Zinc the Hell Out of 'em."

The favorite rhymes in an overall survey of the thousands of slogans are "destruction" and "production"; and "relaxes" and "Axis." Oddly enough, several have come through from scattered sections with, "Democracy's (of Freedom) existence depends on your assistance."

The Du Pont factory at Pompton Lakes, N. J., made a bow to the U. S. Treasury with, "A Defense Stamp a Day, Keeps the Axis Away." And the Arma Corp., Brooklyn, also did a little extra-curricular work in developing the time-saver slogan: "If it's talk—take a walk." Arma's production slogan is equally direct: "Cook His Goose—Produce."

The WPB is pretty keen about its slogan campaign. Michael Strauss, director of the production drive, writes a personal letter to each of the winners. Labor-Management committees are given all kinds of advice and encouragement in promoting the campaigns. The reason: plants plastered with the words of the sloganers almost invariably are ahead of production schedules.

MAN ABOUT MANHATTAN

By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—This beau ideal of a soldier has what is known as dash. He enters a room as Jeb Stuart would enter a room. When he gets there, his presence fills it. He doesn't wear Stuart's plume, but if plumes were in order he would have one. His trousers are the only plated trousers in the Army. The new summer officer's blouses do not have belts, but his has one. He is Brigadier General James Doolittle, who came to New York by devious ways, including Tokyo and Washington.

With him was Paul V. McNutt, and the occasion was an informal party given by an old friend, Charles E. Rochester, of the Lexington Hotel. Major General William Otnum was there, and so was Brigadier General Wolf there, too, was Captain John S. Baylis, of the Coast Guard, formerly captain of the Port of New York, but now enroute to take command at San Juan, Puerto Rico. It was the first time I had seen Capt. Baylis in more than two years. He was a commander then.

YOU walked in and there were whole roasted turkeys and hams and lobsters. There was a special floral plane built of white and red carnations and orchids, which McNutt presented to Doolittle. Doolittle accepted it, then seized what appeared to be an African bush knife and carved out a huge slice of turkey. He seemed fascinated with the knife. "How about borrowing this," he called to his host. If I get in trouble I could use it."

Over a platter of French-fried shrimp I said:

"General, I don't want to keep harping on this—but what were your reactions, what did you think when you came in there, in broad daylight, and saw Japan suddenly come up out of the ocean in front of you?"

"I was astonished," he said. "That we weren't anticipated at sea."

After they got that close, they knew they were going to do all the things they had set out to do.

JUST about then the door burst open, and with bull-like roars, Ole Olsen and Chic Johnson came in. Confusion reigned. Johnson and Olsen are old pals of the general's. There was much loud talk and laughter. Paul V. McNutt, who is the handsomest man I ever saw, sank back on a couch and laughed for fifteen minutes. Later, I sat in a corner and divided my attention between a strawberry pie and the general. Perhaps a dozen, maybe twenty, of his officer friends came in to greet him. When he shakes hands, you can feel it to the elbow. Having one son in the Army and another in West Point, he must be close to fifty. But he has the step of a tennis player. He's hard as a buck private marine.

When news of the Jap attack on Hawaii first broke last December 7, Doolittle was standing with several of his pals, in St. Louis, I believe. As one of the men who was with him recalls, Doolittle banged his fist against a table and said, "I'm gonna get in this."

It appears that Jimmy Doolittle knew exactly what he was talking about.

Prize Winning Cartoon

Copyright 1942, B. P. O. ELKS

"YOU TAKE CARE OF THIS BUNCH—I'VE GOT A LETTER FROM HOME."

Above is the cartoon which won first prize of $300.00 in the Elks War Commission's "Write 'Em a Letter" program for 20-year-old SERGEANT JACK D. O'BRIEN who is attached to the Public Relations Office at Camp, California, Flying School.

Sergeant Jack D. O'Brien, attached to the Public Relations Office of the Chico, Cal. Army Flying

School, hit the jack pot in the Elks

War Commission's "Write 'Em a Letter" cartoon contest taking first grand prize of $500. The contest jury, composed of cartoonist

Robert "Believe It or Not" Ripley;

Joseph V. Connelly, President of

King Features Syndicate; New

York Sun columnist H. I. Phillips;

Douglas Borgstedt, Feature Editor of the Army's new overseas newspaper "Yank" and Ed Sullivan, columnist of the New York Daily

News, made their selections at the

New York Museum of Science and Industry. Second prize of $200 went to Private Bill Mauldin of the 45th

Division and third prize of $100

went to a Navy man, Apprentice

Seaman Robert G. Woodcock of the Naval Training Station, San Diego,

California.

The prize winners were selected from 50 cartoons submitted by enlisted personnel of the Army and Navy from camps and bases all over the country and from Pearl

Harbor, Puerto Rico, the Canal

Zone and Bermuda. Each cartoon entered in the final competition had previously been adjudged best among those submitted at the 50 camps and bases which partici-ated in the cartoon contest phase of the "Write 'Em a Letter" program. Each cartoon reflects the desire of the men in the armed forces to receive more mail from family and friends at home and 13 of the best drawings will be reproduced in more than 550 daily newspapers throughout the nation in the effort to impress the public with the morale building values of increased correspondence.

Sergeant O'Brien, who enlisted in the Army when he was 18, started drawing in high school because—using his own words—studying was too much trouble and art classes presented the line of least resistance. He began drawing cartoons for the post publication at Moffett

Field, sold a few to magazines and decided drawing could be mildly

BY FLOYD PASSINGER, Sports Editor

The National Forge may have run off with the first half gon-falon of the Sunset Baseball League in an unperturbed manner, but just the same, in a roundabout way, the loop is responsible for a better brand of baseball in this vicinity than has been realized in the past three years. Several good games have resulted in the circuit itself, but while the Forgers have walked all over the Eagles and Stoneham and beaten the Hospital twice in close games, the brand of ball they are exhibiting currently at Wilder Field is above their past three-year par, and as soon as fans realize this the crowds at Irvine should swell considerably. The better grade of ball down there is due considerably to the fact that the Irvine clouters are getting an average of two in workouts weekly in the Sunset League in actual encounters, and in this way are sharpening their batting eyes, applying finishing touches to their fielding, and everything considered are building a faster club than they have known in some time. A team can practice every day in the week and take the field on Sunday only to look like a bunch of duffers. But actual play is far more valuable than all the batting and fielding practice a team might take time to acquire, and thus the result that some exceptionally fine baseball is being played over the weekends at Irvine. The Forge players themselves have voiced their opinions about the above subject, realize and agree that the Sunset League has enabled them to provide better Sunday ball against all opposition. So, while they may drub the daylighters out of the Sunset rivals at times, the tempo of semi-pro baseball has picked up, and the rivaling public is the beneficiary. Incidentally, the talented Sharon Westinghouse team plays this Sunday at Irvine, so you might drop down to Wilder Field and see for yourself if what we are writing about the class of ball the Forge is playing down there isn't completely true.

Local teams were awfully hard on area nines with outstanding records over the Fourth. After snapping the Corry string of six wins at Irvine, the Forge really patted the Merchants with a 15-4 victory and left their won-lost record standing at 6-3. The State Licking and left their won-lost record standing at eight wins and three defeats when they handed them their fourth setback Sunday. Meanwhile, both teams extended their own strings, as we reported yesterday. Mike Cannavino, Erie baseball promoter, is all set to give Titusville a first class independent club if fans down there show sufficient interest. Cannavino, who used to be affiliated with the Sailors during a year when Erie was not in the Mid-Atlantic league, and who last year handled the fortunes of the Meadville Pioneers, has a reputation behind him of providing good teams which should guarantee his end of the Titusville bargain. Plans now are to open the season July 12, under the name of the Titusville Independents, and against the tempo of Ohio semi-pro club. If PONY League is of this area's reach, why couldn't a small semi-pro circuit with Titusville, Corry, Kane and other surrounding towns be formed again to add some interest to semi-pro ball. Fans get more kick out of a league than out of the independent contests, that's sure.

SERVICE MEN IN STRUGGLE THIS EVENING

BY CHARLES DUNKLEY
Cleveland, July 7.—(P)—A great, patriotic throng of 60,000 to 70,000 spectators is expected to comfortably fill Cleveland's massive municipal lake front stadium tonight to witness the greatest stars in baseball battle to swell the fund of the Army and Navy Emergency Relief Funds.

The competing teams will be Uncle Sam's soldiers and sailors, managed by Lieut. Gordon "Mickey" Cochrane, one-time pilot of the Detroit Tigers, and the ever-familiar stars of the American League, victorious in New York's Polo Grounds last night over the National League All-Stars, 3 to 1.

The American League will be led by the veteran Joseph Vincent McCarthy, manager of the World's Champion New York Yankees.

Will See Cleveland All-Star Go Tonight

Six girls of Warren's fair-sized baseball population, there may be more but not reported, left late this afternoon for Cleveland where they will witness this evening's contest between the Service All-Stars and the American League All-Stars.

They will be included in an expected crowd of some 60,000 fans who will turn out for the show to-night to see Mickey Cochrane's best soldier and sailor boys and the A. L. diamond dusters who last night whipped the senior league stars for the seventh time in 10 annual tussles.

Those who left this afternoon included: Myron Jewell, Mike Bleech, Fritz Ebel, George Hultberg, Dr. J. R. Elliott and Floyd Passinger, Times-Mirror sports editor.

Clowns have always been the backbone of the circus and this year Wallace Brothers Circus, which comes to Warren for two performances on Friday, July 10th will introduce one of the largest contingents of buffoons ever seen. These grin-faced funsters who have made it their business to study the art of making people laugh are acclaimed masters of clowning, which is really serious work.

Strange to say clowning is one business that women have failed in. According to one of the old comics, "No matter how they are disguised, they cannot stand to be laughed at." This is probably the reason for so few women clowns.

The entire life of a clown is spent planning ways and means of making huge audiences laugh and in these trying days it is a hard proposition. In their preparation of devising mischievous antics these funsters sometimes try to burlesque topics of the day or head line situations, but never to attempt lampooning anything that would cause anyone pain or sorrow.

Eagles Meet Stoneham Tomorrow; Rains Hold Off 2nd Half Opener

Wet grounds and cold weather held off last night's scheduled second half opener in the Sunset League which was to have been played at Russell Field between the State Hospital and National Forge combines, and so Stoneham and the Eagles line up to open the second round as they did the first tomorrow evening.

The wet elements that kept falling earthward at frequent intervals yesterday never gave Ol' Sol a chance to dry things out and left the infield slippery and muddy, the outfield merely wet, but the entire lot in an unplayable condition.

The change in the week's slate now then simply calls for the Forge and Hospital to put on their show Thursday evening, when the game has been rescheduled, and it lines up three contests at the end of the week in the circuit.

Tomorrow's Stoneham - Eagles encounter starts things, then Forge and Hospital Thursday, and Friday evening the Forge outfit will be the guest of Stoneham.

Quiet Fourth Is Observed At Youngsville

Youngsville, July 6.—An unusually quiet 4th of July was observed in Youngsville. The stores and some of the other business places were closed and there were a number of picnics and family gatherings. A number of local people were at Chautauqua Lake, particularly at Vukote. A number were at various points along the Allegheny river and many of the lodges in the woods in this vicinity were scenes of family or small group gatherings. Flags were flying in town and at many of the cottages occupied by Youngsville folk.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Etheridge reported that all their family, sons, daughters and grandchildren, were home for the 4th. Misses Grace and Belle Quay of Kane, former local residents, were week-end guests of Mrs. Belle Kay, Mrs. Grace Pyman was a guest of her sister, Miss Ruby Babcock, Mrs. Henry Shippe's sister, who has been staying with her for some weeks, left Friday for Cleveland.

Several Youngsville people enjoyed the 4th of July patriotic program in the stadium at Cleveland Saturday evening attended by some 80,000 persons.

During World War I, the average speed of fast flying planes was from 100 to 135 miles per hour; bombers averaged from 90 to 100 miles per hour.

There are no roads on Tulagi, peacetime capital of the Solomon Islands. Traffic is by boat or afoot.

Clowns From Everywhere Coming With Big Circus

Pictured are Eddie Raymond and Albert White of the "Laugh Department" of Wallace Brothers Circus, which comes to Warren on Friday, July 10, and will be accompanied by the outstanding funsters from all parts of the world, in a veritable congress of mirth-provoking funsters.

Two performances are scheduled at 2 and 8 p. m., rain or shine, in which hundreds upon hundreds of ardent devotees will be presented. Miss Emma Ward, the titian haired champion of the air whose sensational aerial accomplishments have won her recognition throughout the entire world. The Arley Troupe, the Riding Nickolians, The Enos, the Marvellos, the Morillo-Savilla Troupes and scores of other internationally renowned aerialists, equilibrists, acrobats and peerless artists will be seen with vast equestrienne displays, over 40 tons of ponderous pachyderms, three troupes of performing horses, performing seals and sea lions, in fact every sort of imaginable feature possible to present in America's foremost wonder show on the brewery show grounds.

The main entrance will open precisely one hour earlier to enable everyone sufficient time to inspect the mammoth menageries of zoological wonders, to enjoy the band concert and secure the best reserved seats.

MRS. MURDOCK TAKES A CASE

by George Harmon Cox

Chapter 14
"Where Were You?"
"YOU told Mr. Thorndike to pay him off," Bacon said to Hester. "and he did, and Mr. Allen delivered them and got a receipt." He snorted softly. "Okay, I'll take that. That's a motive we can use. Before—or after—he was shot, somebody lifted that hundred grand." He shot a glance at Sergeant Keogh, who was leaning against the door-frame. "Not bad," he said, and turned again to Hester.

"You don't seem very worried about that loss."

"I don't see how it concerns me now," she said. "The bonds were his, weren't they? I mean if you recovered them I couldn't have them, could I? Wouldn't they go in his estate?"

Bacon looked annoyed and did not bother to disguise his feelings as Hester went on.

"Now all I have is a receipt for the bonds. I hope you find them because I hope you find out who killed him, but I don't see how it will do me any good." She twisted one hand and inspected the scarlet nails. "It's been rather a shock to me, you know. I still can't quite believe that he—that he's dead."

Her voice died away and there was a moment of silence while she regained control of it. "Neither do I quite understand your line of questioning. If I had any idea that such a thing was going to happen I certainly wouldn't have given him the money, would I? I could just as well have waited a day or two."

Once again, the telephone saved Bacon a reply. He sat down and answered it, saying:

"Bacon speaking. Yes, Malloy. You have, huh? ... Good. Bring him out here. Yes, right away."

He was feeling better when he hung up. He rubbed his palms briefly, a gleam of satisfaction in his eyes.

"Mr. Thorndike ... would you mind telling me the—ah—status of Mrs. Losado's account? That is, just what it amounts to and—"

"That's hardly a matter to discuss here," Thorndike said. "But if Mrs. Losado—"

"I don't mind at all."

Thorndike spread his hands. "Roughly it amounted to about a hundred and fifty thousand dollars."

"Before you handed out the hundred?"

"Yes."

Tough Going
BACON went on with some other questions and Joyce Murdock took the opportunity to study Dean Thorndike. As always he was immaculate, and had anyone been casting a movie that had to do with an investment counselor, he could have stepped right into the part just as he was.

"I see," Bacon said. "And how long has Mr. Allen worked for you?"

"Why—over a year now."

"He handles investment accounts the same as you do?"

"He has two clients of his own, yes."

"That's all he does?"

Thorndike smiled and shook his head. "As a matter of fact, a good part of my business has to do with the publishing of a market letter. I originally hired Ward to help out on it. He had the sort of training I needed and it worked out all right. Since then he was able to branch out with these two accounts which he developed, but he's still my assistant on the letter."

Bacon said, "Thanks very much. How well did you know Clarke, Mr. Allen?"

Joyce stole a glance at her husband, noticing that he seemed attentive but unconcerned; then looked back at Ward Allen, who tossed a cigarette into the fireplace before he replied.

"Not very well," he said. "You knew him in South America?"

"Well—yes."

"And you knew him well enough to have an argument with him last night?"

Allen nodded the lieutenant a moment, his blond face grave but otherwise expressionless. "Did I?"

"You did," Bacon said. "Right here in the hall. At least that's where the argument started. After that you went into the library."

"Perhaps I did," Allen said. "I remember now. The maid was in the hall, too, wasn't she?"

Bacon eyed him disgustedly and changed his tack. "What time did you get home last night?"

"Stay in, did you?"

"Yes, I read until about one and then—"

"Then how does it happen that you put your car away around eleven thirty?"

John Nason
S Allen's face, tightening it about the mouth, yet when he spoke his voice remained polite and inflexible.

"Isn't that as good a time as any, Lieutenant? I didn't put it up when I came home because I thought I might go out again. Later I remembered it and had to go down and put it away."

"How far is the garage from your place?"

"You know as well as I do," Allen said. "It's a half a block, isn't it? Perhaps a little more."

"Hardly far enough, though, to bother with the hat and topcoat you were wearing."

"Far enough when it's chilly."

"See," Bacon said, in a tone which indicated he neither saw nor believed. "What about you, Mrs. Murdock?"

Joyce smiled at him. "You mean, where was I?" Bacon nodded and she said: "I had dinner with Kent at nine and went home a little after ten by ten."

"And stayed there?"

"Yes."

"Miss Stewart?"

Delia exchanged quick glances with Joyce, looked up at the ceiling and spoke with studied casualness. "I was home by ten, I think. I didn't go out again."

The police stenographer was jotting all this in a notebook and when Bacon decided he had everything down he inclined his head at Hester.

"Were you here all evening?"

"I was exhausted," Hester said. "Some of my guests didn't leave until after nine. I went directly to my room, took a hot bath and went to bed."

Bacon asked the same question of Murdock, who grinned and said he was working, and of Thorndike, who stated that he was at his club—he wasn't sure just when he left, but the boy on the desk could tell when he was checked out.

With this there was a sound of movement from the adjoining room. Keogh craned his neck, scowled and disappeared.

"John Nason's here," he said a moment later, and stepped aside. The man who entered was of average height and powerfully built. His face was smooth and square-jawed, his eyes blue and cold and his hair was so blond one had to look closely to find the streaks of gray. His tight-fitting top-coat was still buttoned and he carried his hat in his hand.

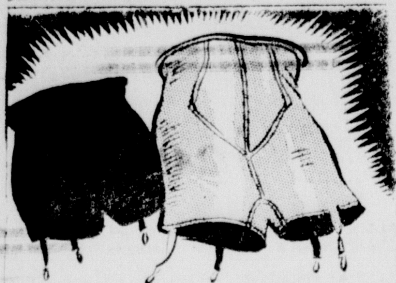

"Sorry to be late," he said after nodding stiffly to the room at large. "And I'm afraid I can't stay long. Just what was it you wanted of me, Lieutenant?"

Bacon told him, answering with equal bluntness. "Did you know Perry Clarke?"

"What about this, then?"

The lieutenant offered a slip of paper.

Railroader Of Note Is Dead

Baltimore, July 7.—(P)—Death has ended the long railroading career of Daniel Willard, who began as a track laborer and climbed to the presidency and board chairmanship of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad. He was 81.

"Uncle Dan," as he was familiarly known throughout the B. & O. system, had been seriously ill of heart trouble since May 21, when he was taken to the Union Memorial Hospital. He died there last night.

For three decades president of the B. & O., Willard retired from that position last year, in favor of Roy Barton White of Western Union and became the first board chairman of the railroad. He had the longest tenure of any president in B. & O.'s 115-year history.

Willard began his 62 years of railroading at North Hartland, Vt., where he was born on a farm January 28, 1861. During the last year he had curtailed his activities because of failing health.

Erie Waitress Slain By Man Who Suicides

 Then, with one shot in the chest over the heart, Francis Weber killed himself.

The district attorney said the factory employe and Miss McNeal had had quarrels for some time and last April 8 police were called when Francis Weber attacked her with a knife in a downtown cafe. Miss McNeal later dropped charges against him.

Laub said Francis Weber had served time for criminally assaulting a woman on a street, and that a charge of larceny of an automobile was pending against him.

 pear before the board tonight for a new hearing to determine his status.

Ingersoll prefaced a list of accusations with a demand that his case be "handled by an impartial board."

Ingersoll, who is 41, said he told the board he had two dependents, one a former wife "awaiting a very serious operation" and the other, an "aged paralytic," and that he had no capital and was, in fact, in debt.

 ily mounting activity on the northern part of the land front.

The Germans, using extensive smokecreens to cover their tanks and infantry, attacked on the Kalinin sector in an effort to take two roads, but the Russians reported they cut the tanks off with counter-attacks and disposed of the infantry in hand-to-hand fighting.

F. B. I. Starts Rounding Up of Bundists

(From Page One)
 Correa said that numerous singing societies in the Yorkville section of New York and elsewhere had taken over Bund activities and continued to foster Nazi beliefs.

He said these would be the subject of further investigation.

Correa said that under the cloak of the name "A Militant Organization of Free Americans," the Bund organizations sought to further the political and propaganda aims of the German Reich.

The indictments strike at leaders in New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Illinois, Minnesota, Indiana, Washington State and California.

China Renews Appeal For a Pacific Front

 ing the Japanese would be a long step toward beating the Nazis. It is sound strategy to hit the weaker foe first, also if Japan is disposed of, the problem of supplying Russia would be solved."

Reviewing China's five years of war, at an embassy press conference, General Chiang soberly told questioners that "very few" planes were being flown into his beleaguered country, and that American financial aid was of little direct help to the war effort.

The Japanese, he charged, have used mustard gas more than 800 times against Chinese forces, and have employed germ against civilians.
